BIOGRAPHY

Life on the road is not an easy one. However, the call is a divine mission, and Florida-based trio The Walkers feel the journey is well worthwhile.

The group formed almost 20 years ago, performing generally in Florida. However, in order to reach a broader audience and touch more lives, the group has learned to adapt.

Billy Walker explained, “The Walkers have always been able to adapt to the ever-changing church world of ministry. In the beginning, we were live music with a total southern gospel feel. A year or so into our full-time ministry, we got involved in the use of tracks as well as more modern forms of Christian music.”

“The original material that we were writing began to have a little more edgy country/contemporary feel to it, but still having the elements of the southern gospel genre that we love.” Billy continued. “Probably one thing that will never change about the Walkers is that signature southern gospel tag and gut busting endings that this genre is known for.”

Today, the music can only be described as “Walker Style”.

“We only care about sounding like who we are. We have been fortunate to be extremely versatile,” mentioned Walker. “We move from southern gospel to country, from traditional hymns to today’s top praise and worship and there is a seamless transition.

In the future, The Walkers’ goals are to continue to be on the cutting edge of music ministry and to be a relevant ministry for today’s relevant church.

Billy responded, “We want to continue to grow in our music as the times change, yet still maintain the basics that have brought us to this point. We want to put out music and ministry that is going to touch and impact people.”

The Walkers ministry desire is empower the church.

“We have a great work to do as a body,” said Billy. “It is our desire to be on the front lines, we want to help in the revival and the awakening of this great nation for God.

Whether the opportunity presents itself to visit foreign countries, add new personnel, have stage lights, play live music or use any new advanced technology to bring the group to a new level, their number one vision and priority is to see souls saved from the wrath to come.

Billy continued, “Our goal is to bring the knowledge of sin to people so that they may see the reason to receive Christ into their lives. We will not be done with our calling until the nets are full.”

To the Walkers, people are important. As ministers, both in song and in the Word, their desire is to encourage and lift the spirits to those they come in contact with.
